

Population models of mathematical ecogenetics

Demographic systems of genetically distinguished interacting populations are proposed and investigated.

These ecosystems can coexist at suitable stable equilibria or through persistent oscillations.

A suitably defined parameter, the "invasion number", can be identified, that when exceeding a threshold destabilizes these equilibria.